Sophie Ellis-Bextor, By Chance

Take this down Turn it around

I am water underneath a bridge

So? What do I know?

Getting here must be a privilege

Should say something meaningful

If at all

Just to fill the air

Or, believe I adore you

Love you if I dare

By chance

When I turn out the light

I'm finding the right line

By chance

I could put this to right not in the rest of this lifetime

Let it slide

Always inside

Isn't worth the indecision I hide

So, nowhere to go

Stimulating no illusion

I should say something pivotal

Belittle

How you let me down

Or, believe I adore you

Love me if you dare

By chance

When I turn out the light

I'm finding the right line

By chance

I could put this to right

Not in the rest of this lifetime no, no

Look at you going places

See two faces

I know which to trace

I would be holding my breath but things will stay the same won't they

Oh, I know
