

Soraya, Reason to believe

Saw a vision in the middle of the day reality slipped a million miles away as my mind wandered its spirit embraced me and brought me closer to this reason to believe Got a handful of burning questions living with the burden of good intentions having spent years reading between the lines hoping something would stir my mind I've been looking for a reason i've been searching for a way for a reason to believe for a way to be set free When i was a girl and everything was still on my side the urgencies of certain things were hugging at my side now the clock is ticking harder and the years are spinning by faster than i should want them to i find myself struggling against the same old fears through the years remained true I've been looking for a reason
i've been searching for a way for a reason to believe for a way to be set free i've been looking for a reason
i've been searching for a way
for a reason to believe
for a way to be set free