

Soraya, Reason To Believe

saw a vision in the middle of the day reality seems million miles away aa my mind wandered its spirit embraced me and brought me closer to this reason to believe got a hand full of burning questions living with the burden of good intentions having spent years reading in between the lines ive been looking for a reason ive been searching for a way for a reason to believe for a way to be set free when i was a girl and everything was still on my side the urgencies of certain things were tugging at my side now the clock is ticking harder and the years are spinning by faster than i should want them to i find myself struggling against the same old fear through the years remained to

ive been looking for a reason
ive been searching for a way
for a reason to believe for a way to be set free
ive been looking for a reason
ive been searching for a way
for a reason to believe for a way to be set free