

Soul Asylum, Brand New Shine

I got something special to show you But I suppose you've seen it all before There's one thing I'm trying to tell you But then again, you've heard it all before I survived another week just like the one before, you wanting more each and every door, never had before so you go that way it away anything never been before shoes the time millions like the other place every face said this once before never been before
shoes
of you all the time

When everything you wanted somehow leaves
And I looked beneath the carpet behind Trying to find you something like you've And it seems we're just beginners No previous experience at all Just the last original sinners
And if you need me just be sure to call And they tell you which way not to go and One child plays with ??, another throws Like a kite without string go anywhere do I'm trying to take you someplace you've I see something new in each and every move
From your old, old hat to your blown-out It's tried and true, and it's all I do
And I hope it's not all the same to you
The old and new, they get mistaken all
Is there something I've never seen before No, just a brand new shine Now they're cranking 'em out by the They look and act exactly just the same And each one's one in a million And each has got its own elusive game It's the same old dusty atmosphere just I see something familiar in each and Seems to me I've seen you, been here, I'm trying to take you someplace you've
I see something new in each and every moon
From your old, old hat to your blown-out
When I dropped it and broke it, I thought
And I hope it's not all the same to you
And the old and new, they get mistaken
Is there something I've never seen before