

Spark, Blame

My sin is greater than any sea
I grab everything I can for me
My life is worth nothing on my own
I reap the seeds I have sown
I give excuses day after day
Its a lighted path but somehow I find a way to stray

(chorus)

I'm the one that nailed your feet and wrists
I placed the thorns and swung my fist
How can you love someone like me
Why did you shed your blood and set me free

I do the things I do to please me

Does the pain come back from the tree?
My reward should be death
But you set me apart from the rest, even though...
You changed my life and turned me all around
I was forever lost then you made me found
My rewards should only equal death
But you set me apart from all the rest

(chorus)

I'm the one that nailed your feet and wrists
You forgave me and unclenched my fist
You shed your blood on that tree
And you did it all because you first loved me