Stabilizer, Realize

Falling down, I kiss the glowing ground Just before the night runs through Calling out, I miss the only sound That might help to make it through

Darkness will not help to cover up the hateful damage Darkness only helps to hide the tears Of everything, nothing and anything Witness the motion of the earth It's turning back the tide of hate Witness the ending of ourselves Realize a new beginning here

Staring into the sound, in this
I feel the nothing here
Give in, and throw it away
Watch our faces fade
Watch the weather change, its pieces frame the transformation

Darkness before light Sorrow before hope, tonight Pushing forwards we will find our standing