

Staind, Something Like Me

Shards and broken pieces
Shattered on the floor
It's not enough to bleed

Tears and angry voices
And cracks around the door
And no apologies

But every time you say you love me
I still have to stop and catch my breath
How can somebody love something like me?
If you could only say you're sorry
There's nothing in this world I can't forget
Waiting here for you to set me free

Toys and colored pencils
Scattered on the floor
Underneath my feet

Crying over nothing
Always wanting more
Never go to sleep

But every time you say you love me
I just have to stop and catch my breath
How can somebody love something like me?
And every time I feel I'm falling
You'll be there to save me from myself
Little angel watching over me

The taxi's in the driveway
My bags are at the door
And it still kills me to leave

But every time you say you love me
I just have to stop and catch my breath
How can somebody love something like me?
And every time I feel I'm falling
You're the one that saves me from myself
You give me something to believe

And with you here
These cracks and tears
Fade away
