

Staring Back, The End

Consequences more than tragic were so much easier than now what you want you have to buy it love was so much more than magic was so much easier than now what you wanted was an ordinary friend and i try to hold my breath sometimes hoping i can wake up happy in the end no one finds out what it is they thought they think they thought they just might be
consequences more than tragic
were so much easier than now
what you want you have to buy it love was much more automatic
was so much easier than now
what you wanted was an ordinary friend and try to hold my breath and hope i wake up happy in the end