

Staring Back, Version 2.0

step back, realize
i've not gone anywhere but back and forth again and i miss you my friend the one who stands up for me and is a better version of me is missing and
i realized
my motivations cry at the thought of confrontation
i am coming up with new ways everyday to stay right where i am first step, realize if i pretend that i am who i want to be
it might rub off on me
the one who stands up for me
and is a better version of me
is missing and
i realized
my motivations thrive on the thought of creation
i am coming up with new ways every day
once i read through what you say i wont have to stay
right where i am
once i read through what you say
i wont have to stay
right where i am
step back. realize
that your example it will turn out all right step up just in time to take the place of all the heroes in your mind you're the only critic worth listening to you've got to step back, step up, step up just in time