

State Radio, The Waitress

And the waitress is sliding down the wall
Don't ask her why she falls
Surely it will happen again

And the pay phone is swinging against the wall
Don't ask her 'bout the call
She's just trying to forget

Heyoh, heyoh...

And the manager is yelling
Something about her hair being in her face
Customer complainin'
But he really had no case
Counter queens looked up from their magazines
But she goes and stares straight ahead

Today with the door opens
The rain slants in
There's water all over the floor
Busser waves to the
Meter maid
Who don't wave back no more

Heyoh, heyoh...

And the waitress
Has her back up against the wall
You can see her chest rise and fall
Surely she'll come again
And the pay phone is
Swinging 'gainst the wall
Don't ask her about the call
She's only trying to forget

But today with the door wide opens
The rain slants in
There's water all over the floor
Busser waves to the
Meter maid
Who don't wave back no more

Today with the door opens
The rain slants in
There's water all over the floor
Busser waves to the
Meter maid
Don't wave back no more

Heyoh, heyoh...
