Steel Train, Grace

i'm big, and small it hurts to crawl this velvet aisle again and their eyes feast on my deceased they hold the cherry of my pit come please and fel my deceased i know you walk aside your child and her eyes closed, soul rose earth will patch the cracks within i dig a hole for all my sins big, small a pain inside you all will touch your spine when i give in and grace falls 13 years to tall i once walked aside my child but i left him on a velvet aisle