

Steely Dan, This Seat's Been Taken

This Seat's Been Taken

What is the meaning of the morning rain
I got a feeling it's no good
I waited for my baby, but she never made the train
Now I'm hoping at the next stop she will be there
She'll catch my eye and satisfy my every care

[Chorus:]

This seat's been taken
Don't ask me where she's coming from
You're quite mistaken
You know she's gonna' be here
I know she's gonna' come

She must have a reason I will understand
I know she'll turn up by and by
I'll see her standing with a suitcase in her hand
And she'll tell me how she couldn't find a pay phone
She'll start to cry, I'll realize I'm not alone

[Chorus]

(transcribed by John Moore)