Steely Dan, This Seat's Been Taken

This Seat's Been Taken

What is the meaning of the morning rain I got a feeling it's no good I waited for my baby, but she never made the train Now I'm hoping at the next stop she will be there She'll catch my eye and satisfy my every care

[Chorus:]
This seat's been taken
Don't ask me where she's coming from
You're quite mistaken
You know she's gonna' be here
I know she's gonna' come

She must have a reason I will understand I know she'll turn up by and by I'll see her standing with a suitcase in her hand And she'll tell me how she couldn't find a pay phone She'll start to cry, I'll realize I'm not alone

[Chorus]

(transcribed by John Moore)