Stina Nordenstam, Everyone Else In The World

You'll have to stand perfectly still You'll have to close your eyes And when I am finished I don't believe you can go Everyone else in the world Would love me by now Would love me from day one But not you Everyone else in the world Would love me by now Would love me in a crowd But not you False promises of love Are still promises of love Just look this direction And I'll consider you mine Everyone else in the world Would love me by now Would love me from day one But not you Everyone else in the world Would love me by now Would love me in a crowd But not you