

Stonewall Jackson, Difference Between Going And Really Gone

By our house runs the highway only forty feet away
In the driveway sits the car that I could used to get away
Up the sidewalk comes the reason I'm still hanging on
The little boy that makes the difference between going and really gone
You tell me it's all over there's no reason I should stay
You've already found another and I'm only in your way
But past the mailbox walks the reason I'm still hanging on
The little boy that makes the difference between going and really gone
Here comes six years of difference between going and really gone
Sixty pounds of reasons just walk across the lawn
Into the arms of his daddy no I can't do him wrong
For I help create the difference between going and really gone
Yes I help create the difference between going and really gone
