

Story Of The Year, Dive Right In

So here I go I'll dive right in Break through the waves
Straight to the ocean floor

And although my hands are shaking,
I lie perfectly still
Cause I'm determined
To let myself sink down

And I know, I'm buried too far down
To feel the warmth from the sun again
I could wave my arms and swim away, but never reach the shore

But for now I will lay face first in the sand with the wreckage from ships that lost their way

And I know, I'm buried too far down
To feel the warmth from the sun again

And I know, I'm buried too far down
To feel the warmth from the sun again

And although my hands are shaking,
I lie perfectly still
Cause I'm determined
To let myself sink down

And I know, I'm buried too far down
To feel the warmth from the sun again
And I know that I'm buried now I'm buried to far down to ever feel to ever feel the sun again the sun again the warmth from the sun again
