

Stuart Chatwood, I Still Love You

Alone - And there's no tomorrow,
I should have known,
All the pain and sorrow.
I could only see your mind,
Desperate measures for desperate times.
I can't stand the pain,
Assume your love,
I still love you.
The fact still remains,
Time will tell,
I still love you.
With peace - At the same time crying,
There's grace and solitude,
But there's no use in dying.
Things between us - You can't hide,
A stranger's hand weighs upon your mind.
I can't stand the pain,
Assume your love,
I still love you.
The fact still remains,
Time will tell,
I still love you.
You can't see him,
But he's there - Inside.
There's two voices,
You will decide - in time.
In time.
I can't stand the pain,
Assume your love,
I still love you.
The fact still remains,
Time will tell,
I still love you.
I can't stand the pain,
Assume your love,
I still love you.
The fact still remains,
Time will tell,
I still love you.
