Styx, Mother Dear

(John Curulewski)

Lonely feelings in the city One room flat with crumbling walls Sirens play a distant melody Neon shadows paint the halls

In the thirteen months I've spent here With my manuscript and rhymes I've paid in cash for foolish pleasures Mother dear you'd call them crimes

Raise the roof
Light the lite
Mother dear I'm returning tonight
Now I see
Your concern
Mother dear how you taught me to learn

I been a Roman for survival Showing two sides of my face I need the comfort of your wisdom I'm coming home to your embrace

If by chance I pass before you Don't discount my gratitude You're responsible for me here And of course my attitude

Raise the roof
Light the lite
Mother dear I'm returning tonight
Now I see
Your concern
Mother dear how you taught me to learn

Stayin' up half the night Wonderin' if what I'm doin' is right Raise the roof Light the lite Mother dear I'm returning tonight
