Super Furry Animals, She's Got Spies

She's got spies and they're looking out for me But it's not like the KGB it's just a game we play She's got hooks meant for catching fish at sea And she's casting them out and about to catch me unaware

She's got spies, but it's not quite like the KGB, you see She's got spies, but it's not quite like the CIA, no way She's got spies, but it's not quite like the MI6, sixty-six She's got spies, but it's not espionage that makes her tick And when the siren's singing I'll think a thought of you

She's got eyes and they're lodged in the back of her head And she can see three-sixty degrees without turning around She'll sometimes cry after watching the six o'clock news And if the four-minute warning chimes we'll hide here underneath the desk

She's got spies, but it's not quite like the KGB, you see She's got spies, but it's not quite like the CIA, no way She's got spies, but it's not quite like the MI6, sixty-six She's got spies, but it's not espionage that makes her tick And when the siren's singing I'll think a thought of you

She's got spies, but it's not quite like the KGB She's got spies, but it's quite like the CIA

And when the cold war's over
The springtime thaw will flower
And when the siren's singing
We'll sense a new beginning just as we reach the end
