Supreme Majesty, Keeper Of The Dead

As a boy, he was to young to see And didn't know what it was But from the start he was meant to be, Just one among us Now as a man, he's blinded by thirst On his way to tare down the church Like a spell that been cast

He was the keeper The keeper of the dead Got all the features To justify all threats

Just for a while, he may appear for you In different shapes and disguise Nothing here and nothing left for you And there's no reason to cry Dive into his world, For the hunt of a promised land You didn't know he was coming You haven't ever been asked

They call you fool, but you should not listen To all of their lies, they trying to tell you

See him, watch him, fear him Feeling cold winds blow
