

Suspect Zero, Syndrome Burn The Ways

only blood can be as thick as it should be to keep a friend blood keeps your ancestors in mind only a feeling can describe what it's like to be alive maybe just words they can express what it is to breathe and I swear I'd prefer any second in my life before I'd find a wrong salvation

this keeps me breathing and I do this because of the world itself and because of respect of one another I would never hang myself only risk gets you to the line where you find yourself again and shows then who you really are this might help you sometimes only doubts they get you down or help you up when you're in needs often said but never enough that you only live once

and I swear I'd prefer any second in my life
before I'd find a wrong salvation
this keeps me breathing
and I do this because of the world itself
and because of respect of one another
I would never hang myself

screw the night and everything she stands for and read the clue like it could heal your cancer and burn the ways of those who seem to follow you and every step is a remembrance to the days

and I swear I'd prefer any second in my life
before I'd find a wrong salvation
this keeps me breathing
and I do this because of the world itself
and because of respect of one another
I would never hang myself