

Symphorce, Gone Too Far

Raise the flag of shame unholy is your name frozen life too blind to see Now see a crumbling sky. I drain you of life distant echoes haunt the brain to find the answer to the mystery there's no return with every step you tread and every breath you take I will learn

Holding on to the fire please, alternate my wires This time I've gone too far heat up my core desire, only

You'd know what I just said who knows what lies ahead I used to look behind the lies I'd like to feel alive just one more time you caught yourself before I cried Awakened by the anger in my mind every nerve in flame draining the life
from me, my ears they bleed it will never be the same Falling, to the setting of the sun calling, gravity pulls us on - oh!
