

System Syn, Abrasion Collar what did you expect me to say did you think this would end your way like I'd ever let you leave without a scar did you really think that I would convince myself that I should make a wish upon your dying star

I have seen the light falling from the sky and I will see the tears streaming from your eyes and I will have no mercy my god, I will have no mercy

in the darkness of the light in the shelter of your frozen night in the place that only we have been in this all too human mask of "sin"; I never wanted to be more than what I asked of you you knew it would end this way
in the darkness of the light
in the shelter of your frozen night
in the place that only we have been
in this all too human mask of "sin";
you read in between the lines that only you had seen
you knew it would end this way

don't waste the hours of this day praying everything will stay like you give anyone a reason to live their consolation isn't true you know half the blame falls on you and you can take but you won't give

I have seen the sun falling from the sky
and I will see the tears streaming from your eyes
and I will have no mercy
my god, I will have no mercy