

System Syn, All That Now Has Left Your Reach

she says you'll regret this ten years down the line in the same way that she now feels the sting from the void of the spark that she brought to my eye and only now do I think she's right though ten years haven't passed I can feel it in your subtle glance just a ghost of a question taking residence in your mind what would life have been where would we have been and I could have told you then but I won't tell you now there's nothing left to learn from this there's no one left to burn for this there's nowhere we can bring ourselves that won't reflect the place we left we hope in time the world goes blind the stars shut down yet we still find there's nowhere we can show our face still scarred yet no one else will burn time has severed our connection you don't even know my smile you can't even read my eyes and she says you'll realize this as she won't admit she has all these things we could have seen all that now has left your reach