

System Syn, I Never Was

I want an enemy like you I want to lie until its true Ill trade this life for something new if that means I can blame it all on you you want to run away from this detach yourself from what youll miss youd trade this life for one last kiss anything for instant bliss

I dont think you know me now and I dont think you ever will you live your life moving on but you are always standing still fighting tides of burden red from all the lives that you once wore you peeled away your human face and I dont know you anymore they say everything must die apply that now to you and I these things you hold are in the past and you know why they didnt last it wasnt my fault, it wasnt our time its not like life came with a perfect design theres one person to blame and you know its not me Ill give you one fucking guess who that person could be

I owe you nothing I dont owe you anything at all how am I the enemy by design or destiny this is what life was meant to be and you thrive off the tragedy you can say its my fault if that helps you to sleep or just choke on the secrets that you made me keep you were afraid of me then and youre afraid of me still you want to see through me but you never will