

System Syn, Now

these days hold all the glory that you'll ever know you pray for change for your whole life and let the beauty of the moment go you hope to have a face one day but have no means to form expression and when you suffocate on this you won't exist to learn your lesson I don't want to live my life to think there's something more I touch the things I want to feel if it burns me then it's real I don't care if you define your life by what you do not have but I can't live my life that way there's so much more I have to say before I say goodbye there is nothing more than what exists before your eyes in this moment and this moment breathes for you alone this sunset burns for you alone no change could burn it brighter no new horizon could keep it in the sky forever there's a part of me you never knew the same thing could be said for you I have no desire to try to hold my past or live a lie there are words you will never speak people you will never meet heights to which you'll never climb and all your dreams will fade away in time there is nothing more now is all we have