

Tacere, Black Roses

The time has frozen
all the moments are stolen Everything seems so grey and even silence is silent now

The black roses she gave me
I realised contradiction
The only one lying to me was me myself
No longer needed is for time to freeze
Those captured moments come back with the breeze
I am still alone and still I yearn forevermore

But I still feel the whispers from my heart
The yearning for something I lost so long ago Didn't know what or where Didn't know when or why

In silence we dwell from silence we come
From empty and fragile our answers derive

The black roses she gave me
I realised contradiction
The only one lying to me was me myself
No longer needed is for time to freeze
Those captured moments come back with the breeze
I am still alone and still I yearn forevermore