

Takida, Reason To Cry

All this time with you
You really loved me despite my faults, and you knew

And you're not coming back
I got a reason to cry

The bottle's empty and cold
Just like I've been since I heard that you died alone

You're finally home now and I try to accept that you're gone
I wish I could have been there for you all along

With your back against the ground

All I want all I need is to make you breathe
All that I want all that I need is to make you breathe

Yeah you failed somehow but I know that you tried

It's all that I want it's all that I need, please begin to breathe