Tara MacLean, Holy Tears

Wrapped inside a twisted world I can't decide what is even real anymore as though I ever knew Tangled in these silhouettes floating face down in a river of regrets and thoughts of you

Holy tears they linger on Holding you my light forever gone

You believed she'd never leave Rosy cheeked and oh so young and full of flame Here in this bed of emptiness Button by button I come undone and only twenty-one

Holy tears they linger on Holding you my life forever gone

Gone like the broken words at your feet You're gone in the venom lips that kiss me sweetly Gone like a frightened bird into the sky Won't you take everything I ever had and leave me to die as I cry

Holy tears they linger on Holding you my love forever gone