

Ten Foot Pole, Dying Duck In A Thunderstorm

you heard the warnings saw the signs do you still think we left you behind don't you remember how we tried another place another time without reason without rhyme can you imagine life without your pride you look up at me with those hurt puppy dog eyes I never meant to hurt you i'm sorry that I had to be the one to tell you that you screwed up for the last time I know that there were times before when I said I would be there that's when I thought the choice was mine but now i've lived and I know better promises were never meant to be because I couldn't see that the things you thought you'd change you had no will to rearrange so you made a liar out of me what else can I say i'm sorry it turned out this way do you think we'll ever be the same it'd still call you my friend but to you it is the end I know you think that i'm the one to blame
