

Terra Naomi, Flesh For Bones

Im sitting here frozen in this bed I made Considering the weight of the bricks I laid now that Im through One by one sealed every crack that I could slip between to find my way back Find my way back home to you

And Im burning all my bridges
with these matches I light
To illuminate my path to what is right
And even if its true what they say that you cant go back home
once youve cast it away
I would still have left tonight

You know baby I would be with you if I could
To trade my flesh for your bones
I would, I would, I would, I would, I would

I carry with me on my way
All the ghosts of all the love that I let slip away
The heavy weight of promises made
That if I could exonerate
I might just lift off today

And Im burning all my bridges
with these matches I light
To illuminate my path to what is right
And even if its true what they say
that you cant go back home
once youve cast it away
I would still have left tonight

To trade my flesh for your bones
I would, I would, I would, I would, I would

I chased your memory from my mind
But every song I write is just a wish to find you, near or far Through all the tears and all the time
That I been running blind
I still aint got to where you are

And Im burning all my bridges
with these matches I light
To illuminate my path to what is right
And even if its true what they say
that you cant go back home
once youve cast it away
I would still have left tonight

To trade my flesh for your bones
I would, I would, I would, I would, I would
