

Thaurorod, Empire Falling

Why is it you can't find one single word to say
Why is it you must go like a river in its veins
And all the tears I've cried and all the tears I've dried
It seems to me one day it's all reality

They warned you don't get greedy
Soon your people drown with lies
And there is time for grieving
No more lies No more pain

We are entering the point that change the world
No return afterwards the gates are closed for evermore
We are passing through the gates that leads astray
No remains of the past the empire falling from the sky
..through the night

And if you turn your face into the south tonight
You'll see the sun up in the sky and it still shines
The world keeps changing round us, man remains the same
And if you turn back time you'll see beyond the lies

You are falling - you are crawling - you could not foresee
You are drowning - you will sink - this chapter it will end
We are soaring - rising - we are ruling your mind
Time will come to take control and dive into the dark

They warned you don't get greedy
Soon your people drown with lies
And there is time for grieving
No more lies No more pain

We are entering the point that change the world
No return afterwards the gates are closed for evermore
We are passing through the gates that leads astray
No remains of the past the empire falling from the sky
..through the night