

The Alice Band, Lights Are Changing

Disapearing out of site
Along the open road
Into indistinct horizons
I had no time to reload.
And like a silver bullet from a gun
An arrow from a bow
Like an equine star you hear about it
Everywhere you go.

All through the journey home,
I was racing in my mind.
I tripped up the light fantastic and i never looked behind.

You slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing
You slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing

Looking through your hollow eyes
Across the great unknown
Growing greater every second
Growing harder with each stone

Yeah you who judge your freedom
By the quantity you score
Would it make you any freer
If you took a little more

All that summer time
I revolved around your eyes
In accelerating spirals
In an asymmetric sky

You slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing
You slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing

You fly so high yeah
And you move so fast
You're running blindly from the past

Slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing

Yeah you slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing
You slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing

You fly so high yeah
And you move so fast
You're running blindly from the past

Slow down, you slow down
The lights are changing