The Ataris, Down

A young girl walks into a room And doesn't like what she sees In her reflection there She's not what she wants to be

She cries out, she cries out

The frustrations of this life Are filling her head How could such a simple thing Have a grip so intense

She cries out, she cries out I want to be like the movie stars And models on the screen

She wants to fly away from this She wants to fly away from this But she does not know how to Fly away from this She wants to fly away

She tries just to be what she's not But she's destroying herself She starves herself This compulsion must end

She cries out, she cries out I want to be like the movie stars And models on the screen

She wants to fly away from this She wants to fly away from this But she does not know how to Fly away from this She wants to fly away

This addiction is bringing her down This obsession is bringing her down

She wants to fly away from this Fly away from this She wants to fly away from this But only God knows how to Fly away from this He will help her now to Fly away from this She wants to fly away Fly away