The Badlees, Fear Of Falling

Last night i dreamt of flying over hill sides in the snow And i dove down through the clouds to the valley there below when feilds turned into parking lots my freedom turned to dread the ground rose up to greet me and i jumped up out of bed

you can fly fly fly off to anywhere you choose you can try try try but, eventually you loose seems there's always something trying to keep a good man down I have no fear of falling but i hate hitting the ground

Searching through my soul for trying to find some extra change i thought that i knew everything, till everything changed Now i'm standing on an island that is sinking into the sea and all that i can do is just enjoy the scenery

You can fly fly fly off to anywhere you choose you can try try try but eventually you'll lose they say a man hears sweet soft music just before her drowns I have no fear of falling but i hate hitting the ground I have no fear of falling but i hate hitting the ground (yeah) hey yeah yeah

you and i have politics and there's line that we don't cross we live happily ever after inside this little box but you can't just take a lion and throw him into a cage and expect him to be greatful for the shelter that you gave you can fly fly fly off to anywhere you choose you can try try try but, eventually you loose the more you try to cling to me the less i'll stick around (all right)

I have no fear of falling but i hate hitting the ground

the more.... you try to cling to me the less i'll stick around I'll stick around
I'll stick around
