THE BANGLES, More Than Meets The Eye

He's got a slow, slow ride Got a camera inside He takes a picture Hangs it up to dry And there's one girl named And another disclaimed All the time You can't help feeling ashamed Given new reasons to survive He keeps a number of them alive There's a warning in the sky A stranger passing by And there's more than meets the eye to the guy When you're so secure Never feeling unsure That's the time To check behind your door 'Cause there's one thing said When another is meant He's around Confusing you 'til the end. Seeing how changable you feel Don't think this happiness is real And it's hard to justify The tangles you untie There's more than meets the eye to the guy
