THE BANGLES, Something To Believe In

When I saw you for the first time Eyes the color of the ocean Something moved inside of me Long forgotten lying broken Now I can't turn away Watching you as you lay sleeping Can you hear winds of change Is this something to believe in I lost direction in the darkness Couldn't stop myself from running I could feel the sun on my back But I was afraid to let the light in Now I can't run anymore Now I see this gift you bring me Can you hear winds of change Maybe this loser's luck is turning I will carry you in my heart I will hold you in my memory You could be a million miles away But when I call You will hear me