

The Bear Quartet, Last Verb

a hand on your head lets you know someone's in here with you once you woke me only to say wasn't today a good day say let the lost word be the last word even if it's unheard let love be the last verb

our homes' not broken just put together in a strange way when you enter we may be quiet but you're welcome and appreciated

let the lost word be the last word maybe stupid but you heard
let love be the last verb