

The Bear Quartet, Lights Out, Sound Off

whoever is inside of you better show a face in order to answer to things he or she's done to my best friend she hangs her jacket on the stool and sucks all the sounds out of the room a figure of speech, but true who are you

what has she become

come
she

used to be my best friend
but something has changed into something strange
used to be my best friend
but something has changed
and here is where it ends

I was never happier and still she never smiled that much and still always and still the guilt is still suffocating going from silent to totally numb it's not loud enough to hear it come it's nobody's fault

I know and still who could let it go go go go

she