

The Big Moon, Trouble

Standing on this bridge I see the difference
My memory put me somewhere else
I was on the other side,
Light was pouring down through the trees
I didnt know what was about to hit me
Now it looks so tame
In the light of day
Trouble dont last forever
Trouble is your memories do
But every time i remember
Something is a little less true
I don't need your praise,
I need your presence
Compliments don't lift you off the floor
But this will come this will go,
I know that as well as i know
The shape of my face when I'm holding my head in my hands
Trouble dont last forever
Trouble is your memories do
But every time i remember
Something is a little less true
Trouble dont last forever
Trouble is your memories might
But every time i remember
Something is a little more right
I never know if im holding you
Or you're holding me
Never thought love would be like fear,
Im scared for everyone i hold dear
That day i swear
This bridge went somewhere else
And not all of me came back
Trouble dont last forever
Trouble is your memories do
But every time i remember
Something is a little less true
Trouble dont last forever
Trouble is your memories might
But every time i remember
Something is a little more right
