

The Bluetones, Ames

Indecision is a curious thing, it can turn your charity into sin.
Hesitation or the blink of an eye can make your truth feel just like a lie.
What if you were raised to feel naturally grateful, guilty?
What if you were raised to feel naturally grateful?
Repetition as a way of life, its a safe way out but a long hard fight.
Isolation is a means to an end, its amazing how fast youll forget your friends.
What if you dont have what it takes to be humble, worthy?
What if you dont have what it takes to be humble?
Feed your head, save your breath, because one of these days, because one of these days.
Why must I feel Im the one who must show you the way, who must show you the way?
Feed your head, save your breath, because one of these days you might need it.
Why must I feel Im the one who must show you to make you believe it?
Any fool can see that Im a bad example.
If the only advice I bring is to chew on your food and save your string.
Maybe I dont have what it takes to be humble, worthy.
Maybe I dont have what it takes to be humble.
Feed your head, save your breath because one of these days you might need it.
Why must I feel Im the one who must show you to make you believe it?
Feed your head, save your breath because one of these days, because one of these days.
Why must I feel Im the one who must show you to make you believe it?
To make you believe.