The Buzzcocks, Keats' Song

I never knew that
Party talk is oh so dull
Oh what fun to chat
No thanks my glass is full
I looked in your eyes
And blushed with suprise

I'd met you before Hello I beg you pardon Couldn't hear 'bove the roar Why not let's go in the garden? You led the way Oh my it's my day

We looked at a flower Night-scented so you said We talked for an hour Or more and then you read From the book of my mind Some words of poetry of a kind

We said our goodbyes
Au revoir they say in French
My taxi rolled by
I slouched on the upholstered bench
Oh Keats was so clever
A thing of beauty is a joy for ever
