

The Buzzcocks, You And I

You and I will never change
Though we're different we'll remain the same
Love's devoid of reason anyway
Finder's keepers so they say
What I grasp at only fades away
Love's devoid of reason anyway

I heard something you know I
Know that it's true
You know it makes no difference
What you try to do
You know that
Love will always take you by surprise
I feel something special
But I just don't know why

You and I could have such fun
The evening's over the party's just begun
Love dissolves all reason anyway
In the space between the lines
There's the truth that we'd all like to find
What's the point of reason anyway

I heard something you know I
Know that it's true

You know it makes no difference
What you try to do
You know that
Love will always take you by surprise
I feel something special
But I just don't know why

In point of fact
You know it's plain to see
I've got a real thing going here
Not fantasy
You know that
I won't treat you like those other guys
As time is my witness
I don't have the need for alibies

You and I will never change
Though we're different we'll remain the same
Love's devoid of reason anyway
Finder's keepers so they say
What I grasp at only fades away
What's the point of reason anyway