

The Chariot, Forgive Me Nashville

Basically, everything is going wrong
And your only heart is gone
It is out of reach and it's grown
But you didn't break down
You pressed on and you found out
That everyone preaching God
Had turned off all their lights
Or they've buried their teeth inside
A contradicting life
Wait: Don't gnash your teeth and waste away
Have you fallen asleep
With a dagger in between your bones?
That was thoughtfully placed
By your own finesse
Watching
All the sparkles start to fade
And everyone loses their way
The monsters that they make
Well, don't blame the wine glass for the drunkard, dig up your bones
Watching, all the new become mundane
And the sun turns into rain
Distances don't fade
What's golden is now gray
Wait: Don't gnash your teeth and waste away
Have you fallen asleep
With a dagger in between your bones?
That was thoughtfully placed
By your own wretched finesse
Walk on...and you'll never walk alone
