The Church, We Both Know Why You're Here

There is no reason to struggle Nothing on earth you should fear You say you received it but I just don't believe it We both know why you're here You never make an appointment

You never make anything clear You say you're for real like that's a hell of a deal But we both know why you're here You need it and you read it and you feed it and you don't believe It's just a joke You follow it you swallow it and then you like to wallow in it Like civilized folk Who like their rewards nice and easy But you thought you were the four musketeers You say you've got the stuff but there's never enough And we both know why you're here You say some rich man really loves you Did you really think he's sincere He wants all you got, that isn't a lot And we both know why you're here You walk it and you talk it but you never balked in it Like nothing's wrong You rush it and you crush it I'd hate to ever see you suss it But my curiosity is strong
