

The Corries, Loch Lomond

Notes: This song is often played jauntily and used as a representatively Scottish tune particularly in films and computer games (Lemmings 2 for example) It deserves better. The song is a lament for a lost love killed in battle. He will now take the "high road" (in heaven) while Moira (his love) stays on the "low road." They will never meet again in this life but they will some day meet again far above the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond.

O wither away my bonnie May (which direction) Sae late an' sae far in the gloamin' (so far in the d

Chorus:

O ye'll tak the high road an' I'll tak the low I'll be in Scotland afore ye For me and my true love will n

I trusted my ain love last night in the broom (own) (bush) My Donald wha' loves me sae dearly For

O well may I weep for yestreen in my sleep (well) (yesterday) we stood bride and bridegroom toget

(chorus)

As dauntless in battle as tender in love He'd yield ne'er a foor toe the foeman (enemy) But never a

The thistle may bloom, the King hae his ain (have his own) And fond lovers may meet in the gloam

(chorus)