

The Corrs, Rainy Day

A bomb drops and no-one stirs on a lazy summers evening
Seated, with a man she knows she shouldn't be with
But in his eyes, the light surprise, something she's been needing
A certain touch within her voice, can tell you what she's feeling

I want you
Need you
Yeah, I want you
I'll need you

And I'll be lying here waiting, hoping lov'll come my way
(save it for a rainy day)
But if the sun's still shining
I'll save it for another day
(save it for a rainy day)

A door slams and suddenly, she's awoken from her dreams
Of late goodbye's and shadowed eyes, those crazy summer feelings

I want you
Need you
I want you
I'll need you

And I'll be lying here waiting, hoping love'd come my way
(save it for a rainy day)
But if the sun's still shining
I'll save it for another day
(save it for a rainy day)
save it for a rainy day

I want you
Need you
Yeah, I want you
I'll need you

And I'll be lying here waiting, hoping love'd come my way
(save it for a rainy day)
But if the sun's still shining
I'll save it for another day
(save it for a rainy day)
save it for a rainy day...
