The Cure, A Strange Day

Give me your eyes That I might see the blind man kissing my hands The sun is humming My head turns to dust as he plays on his knees

And the sand And the sea grows I close my eyes Move slowly through drowning waves Going away on a strange day

And I laugh as I drift in the wind Blind Dancing on a beach of stone Cherish the faces as they wait for the end A sudden hush across the water And we're here again...

And the sand And the sea grows I close my eyes Move slowly through drowning waves Going away On a strange day

My head falls backs
And the walls crash down
And the sky
And the impossible
Explode
Held for one moment I remember a song
An impression of sound
Then everything is gone
Forever

A strange day...