The Cure, Mouth To Mouth

Your body grows more beautiful with every move you make Your body grows more beautiful with every bite I take You won't believe I love you it's too stupid for words So I lick your trembling lips and use your hands to feed the birds I laid with you for hours staring at your face I laid with you for hours remembering your taste And when the morning came it splattered us in light I think I left you sleeping there I think I left you sleeping Mouth to Mouth - I asked you to stay Mouth to Mouth - but you're slipping away Down seven stairs and first on the left Arch your back and hold your breath A million fat girls and a million fat man Couldn't put me back together again.
