

The Damned, Generals

big city all scratched out, revenge is not so sweet once proud once so devout they're tired and they are weak they came from east to west, counting up the cost red star soon to arrive, they know that all is lost (chorus :)

and only the wounded remain

the generals have all left the game with no will to fight

they'll fade with the light there's nobody left they can blame what once was decadence, now's nothing but raised land the end so imminent, big city's not so grand they came they saw they conquered, people hid in fear they looted, raped and plundered angry russians bare (repeat chorus)

reichstag, flies red flag, signalling the end party now bad bad, suicide the end there's some who think that golden years might lie ahead no leaders anymore, in the bunker, dead (repeat chorus, then :)

the whole world is going insane
